the sun and her flowers

my parents never sat us down in the evenings to share stories of their younger days, one was always working, the other too tired, perhaps being an immigrant does that to you.

the cold terrain of the north engulfed them, their bodies hard at work paying in blood and sweat for their citizenship, perhaps the weight of the new world was too much, and the pain and sorrow of the old was better left buried.

i do wish i had unburied it though, i wish i'd pried their silence apart like a closed envelope, i wish i'd found a small opening at its very edge, pushed a finger inside and gently tore it open, they had an entire life before me which i'm a stranger to, and it would be my greatest regret to see them leave this place before i even got to know them.

my voice
is the offspring
of two countries colliding what is there to be ashamed of
if english
and my mother tongue
made love
my voice
is her father's words
and mother's accent
what does it matter if my mouth carries two worlds
